W. L. Bailey and Miss Nancy Carpenter were married on the 17th inst., Rev. W. L. Taulbee officiating.

Mrs. Daniel A. Williams died on the 21st inst. She was sick only about three days. She was a most excellent lady, devoted wife and pure Christian. The bereaved ones have our sympathy. AND.

Spreading Spangles.

Miss Florence Cranford is attending school at Campton.

Boone Hanks, of Campton, was in our midst this week on business.

Miller Trent has moved to Jas. Brown's, where he will reside for the next year.

John T. Center has moved back from Campton to his farm. He has been merchandising for the past year.

Frank Samples, of Laurel, was here Sunday, and from what we can learn, some of the girls will start out canvassing soon, as they say they have a sample.

What has become of all the dyed-in-the-wool Democrats. Judging from the land-slide at the recent election they all must have left home. I desire to let them know that I am here and ever expect to be.

Your correspondent had the pleasure of meeting Dr. James Tutt, who has been out West for three years, and he had a great deal to talk about. He says that the West is a pretty country, but nothing to compare with his native home, old

Kentucky. He says that now he will live and die here, and I see where he is right. HYPHEN.

NEATLY TRAPPED

Was An Imposter By Manager James E. Fennessy.

A young man who gave his name as Ignatius Haney got himself in a disagreeable scrape last night. The story is that Haney has a penchant for attending the theater. His long suit is vaudeville shows. It is supposed that he could sit through a melodrama if necessary, but he has shown a decided preference for variety performances. In some manner the young fellow tumbled to the fact that it is customary among theatrical managers to extend courtesies to each other. Several days ago he appeared at the People's Theater and asked for a couple of seats, claiming they were for Treasurer Ed Aylward, of the Grand opera house. He was given the seats, but was informed that in the future it would be better if he would bring a written order from Mr. Aylward.

About 8 o'clock the night following the telephone bell at the People's rang, and Colonel James E. Fennessy, the clever manager of the house, happened to be alone in the office. The speaker said he was Mr. Ed Aylward, and asked Colonel Fennessy if he would favor him with a couple of seats. The last named gentleman at once answered in the affirmative. A short time thereafter Haney presented himself at the People's box office. While Treasurer Eddie Winterburn was presumably hunting desirable seats for the young man, Colonel Fennessy was doing some lightning work at the telephone. By the time that Haney had been given the two seats Mr. Aylward had reached the People's theater.

"That man is an impostor," exclaimed Aylward, as he saw Haney. The latter was then called into Colonel Fennessy's office. He tried to smooth the ruffled feathers of the hustling manager of the "home of vaudeville," but received a large thump in the mouth which felled him to the floor. Colonel Fennessy then gave Haney a choice bouquet of shoe leather, after which he allowed the impostor to rise from the floor. A conversation between the two theatrical men was then held, and it was decided not to prosecute. He was consequently dismissed, after receiving a lecture tinged with remarks from Colonel Fennessy which fairly sizzled with brimstone. It is now a 1 to 2 shot that the next time Brother Haney places his visage in front of the box office at the People's he will have the necessary coin of the realm in his fist.—Cincinnati Inquirer, 25th.

PAPER CURRENCY IN CIRCULATION.

Interesting Facts and Figures in Treasurer Morgan's Annual Report.

The treasurer of the United States, Hon. Dr. N. Morgan, has submitted to Secretary Carlisle the annual report on the operations and conditions of the treasury.

The net ordinary revenues for the fiscal year ending June 30, cents omitted, were $297,722,010, a decrease of $88,007,809, as compared with the year before. The net ordinary expenditures were $367,525,279, a decrease of $15,952,674. Including the public debt the total receipts on all accounts were $724,000,580, and the expenditures were $938,008,522. At the close of business June 30, 1893, there stood on the books of the department charged to the treasurer a balance of $738,467,555.

Adding to this the receipts on all accounts gives $1,462,274,098, as the total to be accounted for, and deducting the expenditures leaves a balance of $763,565,540 June 30, 1894. In addition to these balances, however, there were other liabilities, arising from the postal revenues, from disbursing officers and from other sources, which brought the total to $776,051,808 at the former date, and to $804,854,756 at the latter.

After setting aside the amounts treated as unavailable, the principal of which are the deposits made with the states under the law of 1886, there remained the sum of $740,588,055 in 1893, and the sum of $775,310,559 in 1895, represented by live assets in the several offices of the treasury and mint, together with deposits in national banks. Of these balances the sums of $584,598,920 and $616,155,820 respectively, were on deposit for the redemption of outstanding certificates and treasury notes, leaving $161,994,735 and $159,154,739 as the balances on account of the general fund.

The treasurer remarks that the impairment of the dead reserve, rendering necessary the issuing of bonds in February, was caused chiefly by the depletion of the treasury resulting from insufficient revenues. Even when the supply of paper had become so reduced that the treasury was obliged to pay out large sums of gold in the ordinary disbursements the coin was freely returned in the revenues. The proceeds of this loan were $58,000,000 in gold coin and certificates, but during the month of February there were redeemed $19,200,000 of notes in gold, presumably to meet subscriptions to the loan, so that the net gold proceeds were about $39,500,000. This, together with a gain of $1,500,000 in gold from ordinary sources, caused the reserve to go up from $65,000,000 to $100,500,000, while the net assets of the treasury, with an excess of $7,000,000 of expenditures over receipts for the month went from $125,000,000 to $177,000,000. During the succeeding months until the end of the first week in August, the reserve was affected by deficient revenues and withdrawals of gold for export. The lowest point touched by the reserve was $50,189,505, August 7, 1894.

Prior to July, 1893, the gold reserve was but little affected by withdrawals of coin, there never having been any considerable demand for the redemption of notes. Even when gold exports were heavy the metal was furnished by bankers from their vaults or was obtained from the treasury for gold certificates, of course, without impairment to the reserve. During the last two years, however, the treasury has been called upon to furnish nearly the whole of the requirements for exportation, and there have recently been considerable withdrawals for other uses. To the end of September last the total redemptions of United States notes in gold since the resumption of specie payments were $181,800,000, and the total redemptions of treasury notes in gold from their first issue were $68,500,000.

The two important events of the year affecting the condition of the public debt were the issue of $50,000,000 of 5 per cent. bonds to replenish the gold reserve and the stoppage of the purchase of silver bullion by the issue of treasury notes.

The amount of the new issues of United States paper currency put into circulation during the year was $350,959,100, having been exceeded but once, in 1892. The amount of worn and mutilated notes redeemed was $319,002,200. This also has been exceeded but once, in 1893. The total paper circulation reached its highest point in May last, when it stood at $1,175,000,000. Since then there has been a slight contraction, caused chiefly by the gradual redemption and retirement of gold certificates, the issue of which was suspended, as the law requires, when the gold reserve of the treasury fell below $100,000,000. The amount of counterfeit silver coins and fractional currency detected at the offices of the treasury during the year was $10,500, an increase of $900 over the year before.

Notwithstanding a change in the regulations whereby senders of national bank notes for redemption were required to bear the charges for transportation, the redemptions were the heaviest since 1886, amounting to $105,000,000, or more than half of the average circulation.

Something Wrong.

About two months ago Clint A. Woodbury, a resident of Deering, and general manager of the Portland, Maine, dry-plate company, died. The autopsy by local physicians did not determine the cause of death satisfactorily to the insurance companies in which he held heavy policies, and the stomach and kidneys of the dead man were sent to Prof. Robinson, of Bowdoin college, for analysis.

The professor has reported that enough prussic acid was found in the stomach to cause death. There is evidence of special import to support a theory of murder or suicide, and, taken together, the case is one of deep mystery in every detail. The dead was insured, so it is claimed, in the Mutual Life and New York Life, of New York, for one hundred thousand dollars, divided equally between the two companies.

BURIED GOLD.

A Cherokee Woman Locates a Long Buried Treasure in Tennessee.

Since the 24th inst. the citizens of Union county, Tennessee, 25 miles from Knoxville, have been going daft over the advent of Anna McDonald, an Indian woman from the Cherokee tribe of the west. The commotion this Anna McDonald has stirred up among the people about Log mountain, six miles from Luttrell, is something without precedent in this country.

In short, she has 12 men now engaged in tearing down a large Indian mound, and declares that she will expose a treasure of $500,000. She claims this amount was paid her grandfather, Chief McIntosh, by the whites over a hundred years ago for a large estate sold them by the Indian chief. McIntosh being afraid the whites would rob him, buried it there. Up to last Monday night gold was found to the amount of nearly $50,000. She is being backed by some of Union county's richest men, and it is only a matter of time before the whole amount will be found. The several mounds referred to have nearly all been smoothed down by the roads, but are easily located by the help of a compass. The first one opened was said to contain about $18,000, and 90 feet directly east of this $30,000, together with some old Indian relics, was unearthed. Miss McDonald has a lot of men guarding what she has already found. The gold is in bars. She refused to have any more work done until some of her own people arrive. She claims that she is afraid of the whites. The well-known Indian doctor, J. F. Baer, left about three or four days ago to get a lot of her people in the Indian Territory. They are expected to arrive soon, and then work will begin again. She has gone forty yards northeast from where the $30,000 was found, and on account of her not wanting it opened until her own people arrive it is thought that at least $100,000, or perhaps more, will be found there. About one thousand people visited the place in one day, among them being some very prominent men from Knoxville, Greenville and Middleboro. Farmers of Union and the adjoining counties have abandoned their work and flocked to the scene.

Miss McDonald has expressed a desire to have part of the state militia there in order that her discovery might have better protection, but, of course, the militia will not be sent. Her backers, five in number, are to receive $1,000 each for the money they put out for the unearthing of the gold.

Too Smart for a Brace of Robbers.

A telegram from Spokane, Washington, says that a daring but unsuccessful attempt was made to rob the bank at that place. The robbers, two in number, rode upon horseback, and while one of them stood guard on the outside the other entered the bank and placed a revolver at President Wells' head, commanding him to hand over the coin.

Mr. Wells, with great presence of mind, informed the robber that he would get the money out of the safe, but instead of doing so he turned the combination of the safe, locking it. The robbers seeing they were baffled, grabbed up some loose coin on the counter and rode away. Mr. Wells gave the alarm, and soon a posse started in pursuit and are hot on the trail.

THE BOER LANGUAGE.

IT Differs Materially From That of Holland.

The "Afrikaansche Taal" is not the Dutch of modern Holland. In its origin it represents the old Dutch of the country districts in the Netherlands, together with a tendency toward the Flemish dialect. It has incorporated a great deal of English and a little French, says the Fortnightly Review.

Above all, its pronunciation is quite different to that of the classic Dutch, and it lends itself much more readily to English tongues and palates. It is almost impossible for a Dutchman of Holland, on arriving in South Africa, to understand the native Dutch dialect.

Words are greatly clipped, and, although the abominable guttural "g" is still retained, the equally fatiguing Dutch pronunciation of "s-e-h" is happily changed into a simple "sk." The vowels are pronounced almost as they would be by an Englishman. For instance, "beest" is pronounced like "beast," not like "baste," as it would be in Holland. A Cape Dutchman talks of "De Beers," he does not pronounce it "De Bares," as the real Dutchman would do. Needless to say, the "Afrikaansche Taal" has no literature behind it, and all the best things written in Holland have either made their appearance in Latin, French, or even English, or have rapidly been translated into those languages if intended to be widely read. In adoption, therefore, of the English language throughout South Africa is a necessity forced on that community by commerce, manufactures, mining enterprise, and all dealings with the outer world.

As a matter of fact, a young Boer will learn English as quickly as a raw Scotchman would exchange his harsh dialect for the incisive, clear, quick speech of southern England.

THE ARTFUL TRAMP.

He Was One of Nature's Best Efforts in the Confidence Line.

"Mornin', miss. Is yer mother in?" asked a tramp of the track-walking type of a lady who responded to his knock at the kitchen door. "I am the lady of the house, sir," said the plain-faced woman he had addressed, and who was about forty years old and had a wart on her nose. "What?" said the tramp. "You don't mean to tell me yer old enough to be married?"

"Why, to be sure," said the woman, and I've got children old enough to carry."

"Well, well, well! I've seen a heap of women in my time," said he, "but I never seen one as youthful-looking as you air who was the head of a family. I kin hardly believe my own eyes."

"An' yer the woman of the house, are ye?" "Yes, sir," said she, brushing her tangled hair out of her eyes and smoothing the wrinkles out of her gown. "I don't know how ye guessed you was married," said he. "An' ye have charge of the cookin' and bakin' an' so on?"

"Well, that beats me," said he. "Just to think that a woman I'd take to be only a mere girl is at the head of a fine home like this an' does her own cookin'!"

"I s'pose you know, then, if there was anything left over from breakfast, do ye?" "Yes, sir, there was," she replied. "Well, it seems as though I'm askin' a favor of a young person not old enough to be in authority, but could you gimme a bite to eat?" he inquired.

A half hour later, when he appeared on the street with a square meal safely stowed away beneath his vest, there was a smile on his face that reached from the torn rim of his hat clear down to his soiled shirt collar.—Fibre and Fabric.

A Practical Bride.

The happy pair had survived the congratulations of friends and relatives, and were being whirled rapidly toward the railway station in a brougham before the bridegroom began fairly to realize that the vision of loveliness at his side was indeed his own.

A dawning sense of what he had gone and done and of the sacred charge that was now committed to his care began to creep upon his benumbed faculties, and the rose of health from his downy cheeks and substituting therefor the pallor of haunting responsibilities.

"Darling!" he whispered, softly, "it will ever be my sacred care in life to—"

She interrupted him somewhat brusquely: "I see, she said, "don't sit on your postals that way and get them all wrinkled up, and for goodness sake don't lay your elbow right in that dust! Heaven only knows how long it will be before another suit, and you had better take care of this one."

Now, when we get to the station you'd better get a couple of sandwiches in case we get hungry in the train, and two hard-boiled eggs, and don't forget a small paper of pepper and salt."

The Dog That Went to the Poorhouse.

An incident which would seem to prove that a dog learns to understand the language of his country was related by one willing to vouch for its truth. And this is the story: A dog had come to be very old in a family in a country village. One of the family remarked on a certain day, as the dog lay in the room: "I think Sancho might be put out of the way. He is only a nuisance now."

That afternoon Sancho disappeared, and as the days passed did not return. In the course of a week a neighbor said: "I see that your dog is up at the poorhouse."

On inquiry it was learned that Sancho, having called at the poorhouse and been kindly received, had continued on as a guest. And ever after, although he sometimes made a brief call at his own home, he lived at the town farm, and there peacefully ended his dog's life.—Our Animal Friends.

Lord Aberdeen Speaks.

Lord Aberdeen tells the following story of himself. He left London at midnight in a sleeping-car for the north. In the morning when he was awakened he saw a stranger opposite him.

"Excuse me," said the stranger, "may I ask if you are rich?"

Somewhat surprised, his lordship replied that he was tolerably well-to-do.

"May I ask," continued the stranger, "how rich you are?"

"Well, if it will do you any good to know," was the reply, "I suppose I have several hundred thousand pounds."

"Well," went on the stranger, "if I were as rich as you and snored as loudly as you I should take a whole car, so as not to interrupt the sleep of others."

BRECKINRIDGE FOR THE SENATE.

How That Man of All Men Deserves the Position.

The senatorial derby is on before the election returns are dry. It is simply wonderful the genius we have for politics. There is no rest for the sole of the politician's feet. American institutions and popular government make it a burden upon the people, but they bear it lightly as a yoke. We need a profound rest; we need an interim for meditation and puissant thought; we need succor from the sorrows of the recent contretemps, but getting it is out of the question in Jessamine county.

As before mentioned everywhere the senatorial agitation is to the fore, and there is no hope for it, except to gird up our loins and get ready for the fray, so the gallants are mounting and donning their helmets again.

If ex-Governor McCrory is to be a candidate, and we think there is no doubt about it, save his public announcement—it being tacitly understood, then he, being our neighbor and our representative in the halls of Congress, his friends contend, and they are many and faithful, that it is a courtesy due him, and his faithful performance of duty, that we should be for him and support the good man who offers for the legislature, who will be faithful to his candidacy. No friend of any other candidate will controvert this well established precedent, to stand by our home man, when he has done his best for us, all things being equal. But human nature is perverse, and men are independent entities, swayed by their favorites and governed by principles. They differ about the financial question and the friends of Senator Blackburn, who believe in what they call constitutional money, are for him, though he refused to vote for the repeal of the Sherman purchasing act, a plank in the Democratic platform. He may be right—he was at least consistent—for in the senate he voted as he avowed in our state convention on this vexatious problem. He has warm personal friends in Jessamine who profess to know nothing about free silver and care less—for him for his courage and independence and many other qualities, for him for his long and faithful record, as a Democrat—true as steel, and so on and so forth, world without end; for him for his wonderful personality and inimitable way of getting next to them and sticking like a mustard plaster. They have their eye on several candidates for the legislature in his interest, and already they have their heads together.

Governor Brown has his friends here, for he is remembered that in the last gubernatorial convention he received the instructions of Jessamine over our neighbor, Hardin, and the Clay following, and Jessamine was the only bluegrass county to go his way. He professed to be gratified that he had such staunch friends here, and although the county went Republican at the election, his friends account for it in a way satisfactory to themselves.

The sage of Glen Lily, the hero of Fort Donelson, the statesman, Gen. S. B. Buckner, will not be neglected by his adherents, and should Secretary Carlisle re-enter the race —and it is not at all improbable—all pins and props would be upset, and the situation would be further complicated.

If ever a mortal had friends who stick closer than a brother, that mortal is none other than the statesman par excellence, the civic master, the potent thinker, the one man who combines genius and talent—the orator of orators—the friend of the people, friend of his friends, with untarnished political shield, lover of truth—and its martyr—the unconquered statesman par excellence—Wm. C. F. Breckinridge!

There's a name to conjure with! There is a Hamlet's Horatio—and should he consent to enter the arena—and he will in spite of his protests—Jessamine county will put up a restrained shout that will go into history!

It is already in the political atmosphere, surcharging it with an ozone dispelling small politicians and dwarfing political giants into piling wights.

Breckinridge—for the United States senate! How that man of all men fits the place! There is no incongruity in that prospect. There is no lack of "keeping" in that political drama, and already the curtain is being rung up by his legion of faithful friends true and tried. His enemies divided into several camps—perhaps not his enemies, but friends of the other aspirants—attempt to discourage the Breckinridge men, but in vain—for they believe men can hardly make a mistake in selecting a candidate for the next general assembly. To name the long list of candidates for that office is premature just now, but chief among those prominently mentioned are fighters from start to finish, and may be the best man win.—Nicholasville Democrat.

Favors the Kentuckian.

More testimony was heard on the 26th inst., at Olathe, Kansas, in the Little-Johnson murder case, and the weight of it was decidedly favorable to Mr. Little, who was formerly of Kentucky.

Mayor Barnes, J. O. Fife and a number of prominent citizens testified to Little's good character, while a score of others testified that Johnson's character and reputation in the same direction were bad.

Major Drought stated that in a conversation with Johnson a few days before the killing, Johnson said of a coal deal that if the other party beat him he would kill him, showing his revolver. George Faniel testified that shortly before the killing Johnson told the witness that if ever Little crossed his path he would put daylight through him, and exhibited the pistol with which he said he would do it. Frank Pitman testified that in a conversation in Justice Swingle's office just before the killing, Johnson said that there was not a blacker-hearted man on the streets than Little, and if he crossed his path he would put daylight through him.

$1,000,000 in the Vaults.

The sensational case in which is involved the estate of millionaire Andrew J. Davis, of Montana, will come up in the Suffolk county, Massachusetts, probate court next month. Mr. Davis died about four years ago in Montana, leaving an estate valued at over $5,000,000, more than $1,000,000 of which is in Boston.

Soon after his death search was made for a will, but none was found, and Hon. R. M. Morse, of Boston, and Judge Gideon Wells, of Springfield, were appointed special administrators of the estate in Massachusetts.

Later on, what was alleged to be the last will of Mr. Lewis was said to have been discovered in Montana, but was declared to be a forgery, and in a subsequent trial, which lasted more than three weeks, the jury disagreed, and since then matters have stood still, the will being neither set up nor set aside.

There is in the Boston safe deposit company's vaults today more than $1,000,000 belonging to the estate, and held by Mr. Morse and Judge Wells, who have been anxious to have something done in settling the estate. Recently Mr. Morse applied to the Suffolk county probate court to take up the case and settle the estate so far as it has jurisdiction, and the court has set the matter down for December 17. It is probable that an effort will be made to induce the court to defer hearing the case until the matter is decided in Montana.

THE HERALD

If you feel tired drink Lincoln tea. It cures that tired feeling.

Mrs. Ellis Johnson, whose illness was reported in these columns last week, is now improving rapidly.

Grant Lacy, who has been clerking for Pieratt & Co., has resigned his position and gone to Lexington.

FOR SALE.—We have a fine stove with drum, damper and pipe complete, which will be sold at a bargain.

Thanksgiving services were held in the Christian church this morning, Elder J. M. Downing delivering the sermon.

Mrs. Ireland, mother of Mrs. W. H. Cord, arrived at the Home on Friday evening last, and will remain until spring.

The only way to cure catarrh is to purify the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood and tones up the whole system.

Misses Lula Hurt, Maudie Murphy, Ora Cecil and Ida Murphy paid our office a pleasant call on Thursday evening of last week.

Josh DeBusk and family have moved to their farm on Grassy, in Morgan county, and Mr. DeBusk's residence in Hazel Green is for rent.

Don't buy a range or stove until you see "The Majestic," the range advertised in this paper. It is one of the most complete cooking combinations ever seen or heard of.

THE HERALD and staff acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to dine with Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Day on this Thanksgiving, and if we fail to go will "try and send a hand."

Aunt Sally Trimble will please accept the thanks of the editor and his better-half for some nice cabbage and some beautiful ripe tomatoes, the latter of which is quite a rarity at this season.

Henry Godsey will leave for Washington on Friday morning, and his wife will go to Danville to visit relatives and friends for a short time, after which she will join Mr. Godsey at Washington.

Elder J. T. Pieratt and wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Rose, Dr. Kash and wife, Fletcher McGuire and wife, Misses Minnie Day and Laura Rawlings, and perhaps others whose names we failed to learn, attended the burial of Johnnie Combs, at Ezel, on Wednesday.

Judge John A. Taulbee, our big-hearted friend and fellow-citizen, will please accept the thanks of the editor and his better-half for a fine, fat turkey for Thanksgiving dinner at the editorial mansion. And the best wish we can make for him and his is that they may live to enjoy many a Thanksgiving dinner, and never want for a turkey.

Logan Fallen, who went to Texas about two years ago, has written to uncle Pres Trimble to meet him this evening at Rothwell with a team to bring him home, and he will probably arrive in Hazel Green Friday evening with his family. There is nothing in the world so good as "My old Kentucky home," is the realization of all, sooner or later, who try other climates.

When you go to Mt. Sterling, if in need of a shave, hair-cut or shampoo, call on Lee Fisher, the barber under Green, Clay & Chenault's, South Maysville street. He is a tonsorial artist who has no superior in his line, and he keeps only first-class barbers in his employ. If you shave yourself at home, take along your razor when you go down and have him put it in order.

The death of Johnnie Combs, news of which was received here on Tuesday evening, brought sadness and sorrow to many loving friends and relatives in this place, where he lived for a long time and was universally beloved. He was in many respects a model young man—courteous, polite and accommodating. He died at the residence of his father, Elder D. G. Combs, in Ezel, surrounded by his father, mother and sisters, and loving hands administered to his last earthly wish and closed his eyes when he fell asleep in Jesus. To his near and dear ones our heart goes out in sincere sympathy, but to solace them we can only point to that Savior who has promised to heal all wounds. He is a brother and a son to all who are in sorrow, and He never turns a deaf ear to those who ask of Him. Prof. W. H. Cord and several of the academy students attended the burial from this place.

Do not fail to read the advertisement of Mrs. Maggie Gillum, 49 Gorth Broadway, Lexington, Ky. When you visit the blue grass metropolis give her a call for millinery in all of its various forms. Some of the ladies of this place have made purchases from the above store, and after an individual inspection of her stock, they say it is a grand place and replete with the latest fashions in hats, bonnets, feathers, flowers, ribbons, etc. In short a thing of beauty, which to see is a joy forever, especially if you secure that love of a bonnet.

Jones—not the one who pays the freight—but the jeweler of Mt. Sterling, is receiving the finest line of Christmas goods we ever saw. Dr. Waldeck, of Morgan county, purchased a watch from Mr. Jones last week that is as pretty as a picture and as fine as swan's down. Drop in and see him when you go to Mt. Sterling, and if you need anything in his line you'll be sure to buy, because his prices are right.

"Cleanliness is next to Godliness," though some people may not be persuaded that it is so. If you believe so, send your shirt to wash at the Home steam laundry, Mt. Sterling, Ky., where it will receive the latest—we were just about to say wrinkle—but they don't leave any wrinkles in 'em. Shirts are "as slick as a confidence sharp" when they send 'em out, and shine like polished alabaster. John W. Craven is agent for Hazel Green.

Carrie Belle, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Rose, of this place, died on Friday last and was buried on Saturday in the family burying ground of uncle Johnnie Rose, of Lacy creek. Cause of death, hemiplegia and otoreah. The bereaved family have our sympathy, and may find consolation in the words of Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

The attention of the merchants throughout the mountains is directed to the advertisement of W. R. Nunley, Mt. Sterling, Ky., who represents Harbison & Gathright, wholesale dealers in saddlery, harness, etc., etc., Louisville, Ky. Mr. Nunley has a great many friends through this section and is anxious to make more. Give him an order the first time he comes around.

George Nickoll and wife, who left here for Missouri on the 13th inst., arrived at Rich Hill, their destination, safe and sound, and George wrote to John Spaniard to have THE HERALD sent to him at once. He says he knows he couldn't stay in Missouri without a weekly visit from his home paper, and John started it this week.

BUSINESS DACOTS.

A Lawyer Mistaken for the Law, and Wied Upon at Hangoon.

The excitement among the English in Hangoon, when the robbers and murderers they call dacots may be imagined from the following, says the Hangoon Times:

A Mr. Birch, an advocate, was going in the evening, in a sampan, with a Eurasian clerk. Suddenly another boat with natives in it drew near and hailed. Neither Mr. Birch nor his clerk nor the boatman, who was from Chittagong, could understand much Burmese, and, fearing dacotcy, he made signs to his boatman to pull as fast as he could. The other boat immediately opened fire and Mr. Birch was hit in the thigh. Mr. Birch, being armed with a Deringer, returned the shot and a pretty sharp duel began. A police boat eventually arrived and the thing was stopped. It turned out that the natives were not dacots, but an anti-dacot patrol, who opened fire on Mr. Birch's party because their challenge was not only answered. The Hangoon Times questions whether, in the present unsettled state of feeling, the attack on a European was purely a mistake.

Our citizens to the number of two or three hundred gathered in the harbor district here, on last Monday afternoon at two o'clock, to witness the exhibition made by the Cincinnati and Japan Fire Extinguisher Co. The test was given under the personal supervision of Mr. Herman B. Wells, president of the company, of Cincinnati, and Mr. W. V. Snyder, the local agent, of Georgetown, Ohio, and was satisfactory in every respect, clearly demonstrating the Stemple Extinguisher to be one of the best methods yet devised or invented for the controlling of fire.

A structure of pine boards was built, and after being thoroughly saturated with coal-oil, a match was applied. The extinguisher was then turned and the fire put out in about ten seconds. All who witnessed the test were thoroughly satisfied that the Stemple will do all and more than is claimed for it. The headquarters of the company are S. E. Cor. Sycamore and Canal Sts., Cincinnati—Winchester (Ohio) Herald.

PICKED AND SORTED.

LONDON'S organization as a city was established in the thirteenth century.

COPPER growing at a yearly profit of from 25 to 100 per cent. on the capital invested.

SIX per cent. of the 2,303,941 mortgages in the United States in 1900 were sums under $100.

THE Scotch bagpipe, whose delicate harmonies are the delight of trained musical ears, is of Asiatic origin.

IRON ore deposits of enormous value are locked up in the mountain ranges skirting the southern coast of Cuba.

CANNON were used at the battle of Crecy in 1246, but their general adoption can hardly be dated earlier than the last quarter of the fifteenth century.

THE growth of population for the decade up to 1890 was 25 per cent., but the number of mortgages registered during that time shows an increase of 135 per cent.

THE word "virago" in the renaissance meant a woman of culture, character and charm; a "man-like maiden," who combined the finer qualities of both sexes.

SCIENTIFIC SCRAPES.

POWDERED aluminum mixed with binoid of sodium constitutes a powerful explosive.

THE Massachusetts state board of health has just issued a circular which it is hoped will aid in the suppression of consumption. It places the annual deaths in the state from it at nearly six thousand.

THE head and face have eighty-three muscles; the neck has forty-nine; the thorax, seventy-eight; the abdomen, thirty-three; the back, seventy-eight; the upper extremities, ninety-eight; the lower, one hundred and eight.

PROF. DRYAN has demonstrated that metals augment their magnetic qualities and increase in strength by diminution of temperature. Iron at one hundred and eighty degrees can endure double its normal tensile strain.

A COURSE of lectures at the Royal Institution which has created much interest is that by Capt. Abney, on color blindness. Excessive tobacco smoking has long been known to be an important factor in color blindness, and Capt. Abney indorses the truth of this observation.

THE GENTLER SEX.

MADAME PATTI dislikes the perfume of violets, which she finds has a serious effect upon her throat.

MR. AND MRS. FREDERICK GERHARD, who are at Long Branch, drive the finest pair of colts at that resort.

TO QUEEN NATALIE of Serbia belongs the distinction of owning the finest head of hair among the royalties of Europe. The usually wears it hanging in two long plaits down her back.

THERE are nearly forty thousand women cyclists in the United States. New England and New York claim half of this number, out with good roads the sport is fast spreading in the west, and it is only a question of time before the east will hold second place in numbers.

IT is asserted in some quarters that Princess Eulalie, the world's fair favorite, is living in London in comparative poverty, but she is supposed to be at a ball at Buckingham palace, wearing peach brocade and a diadem of diamonds, she is still probably able to make both ends meet.

HOME HINTS.

CORNER plaster should never be applied to a bruised wound.

DO NOT slice apples for pies; quarter, core and cut each quarter in two pieces.

THE white of an egg stirred up with a little sugar and water is good for a child with an irritable stomach.

IF you store away flat irons for a season rub them over first with a little sweet oil to keep them from rusting.

THE best thing to lousch up salt or sugar which has become hard packed in a barrel is a carpenter's "scratch awl."

A LITTLE powdered borax in baby's bath water prevents the skin from chafing, and it is less liable to "break out with the heat."

IF skirts have shrunk till too short lengthen by bias folds, overlapping, or one bias band stitched or edged with soutache or mohair braid.

INDUSTRIAL AND STATISTICAL.

THERE is one milch cow in this country to every four inhabitants.

OF the 1,134,813 flax spindles in the United Kingdom 846,612 are in the north of Ireland and are fully occupied.

RECENT figures show that the total value of the matches made and consumed every year throughout the world is but little if anything short of $300,000,000.

THE cotton seed mills of the south turned out cotton seed oil worth $41,000,000 last year, $6,000,000 worth of oil cake and meal and over $5,000,000 worth of other grades of oil.

ON the coast of England and France is to be seen the wild plant from which have been developed the white and red cabbages, cauliflower and other varieties, and perhaps even the common turnip.

A dose of Lincoln Tea, taken at bed each night for a week clears complexion.

ABOUT OURSELVES.

THE normal temperature of the stomach is about 93 degrees. Food has to be raised to this temperature before it can be digested.

THE three small bones stretched in a chain across the middle ear are named the mallet, the anvil and the stirrup, from real or fancied resemblances.

THE hair appears to have a life of its own. Many well-authenticated instances are known of the hair of dead bodies increasing in length after interment.

THE brain of man is the most highly convoluted of that of any animal in the world. The lower the animal in the scale of intelligence the smoother the brain.

THE human lungs retain the air in their substance with such obstinacy that it cannot be expelled by any compression short of absolutely disintegrating the tissue.

AERATION of the blood takes place to some extent through the skin. In man the skin gives off a thirtieth to a sixtieth part of the carbonic acid gas given out by the lungs.

THE test for symmetry is to turn a man with his face to the wall. If he is perfectly formed his chest will touch it, his nose will be four inches away, his thighs five, the tips of his toes three.

IN a perfectly formed female figure the thumb should be once round the wrist; twice round the wrist should be once round the upper arm; twice this is once round the neck; one and a half times the circumference of the neck equals that of the waist.

IN HEATHEN LANDS.

MADAGASCAR sheep have a covering of coarse hair, like that of goats.

THERE is constantly in all Japan an average of two earthquake shocks daily.

EACH Malagasy noble has a dye color of his own which nobody else is allowed to wear.

IN Persia the women of fashion ornament their faces by painting upon their figure, fangs and small animals.

IN some Hindoo temples in South India the collection is taken up by an elephant that goes round with a basket.

CHINA raises and consumes more ducks than any country in the world. Some duck farms fifty thousand a year are raised.

THE only clothing materials used in Madagascar are silk and rofa cloth. The latter is spun from a fiber taken from a native plant and is seldom exported.

CABLED FROM ENGLAND.

THE English government has adopted the Bertillon system of identifying criminals by measurements.

ACCORDING to the method which is now adopted for reckoning leap years in England, December, January and February will be the summer months about seven hundred and twenty thousand years hence.

AT a recent civil service competition for the position of writer in the English post office, with a maximum pay of nine dollars a week, there were six hundred and eight female candidates to fill ten vacancies.

LONDON is agitated over the threatened downfall of a great institution which for years has excited the daily wonder of travelers. The county council proposes to abolish the cab-railway, which extends for four miles from Charing Cross, and to have but one scale of fares for the whole county of London.

USEFUL SUGGESTIONS.

RAIN water and castile soap in lukewarm suds is the best thing in the world for washing delicate hosiery or embroidery.

ROASTED coffee and ground coffee beans mixed with honey are, it is stated, used to restore broken-down horses in Germany.

IF you would have your red tablecloths keep their color add a little borax to the rinsing water and dry them in the shade.

SOME cooks add to the water in which rice is to be boiled the juice of a lemon. It is said to whiten, lighten and separate the grains.

BLACK silk handkerchiefs make pretty sofa pillow covers. Work in an effective design of red or corn color in one corner and make it up with or without a ruffle.

NATURAL SCIENCE.

WASPS rank next to the higher classes of ants in point of insect intelligence.

TO be perfectly proportioned a man should weigh twenty-eight pounds for every foot of his height.

THE largest apes have only sixteen ounces of brain, while the lowest type of man has thirty-nine ounces.

"THE Speed of the Earthquake" was the subject of a recent scientific lecture by Prof. Lancaster. He proved that the average speed of transmission of the shock is 10,000 feet per second.

BEETLES have other defenses than their exoskeleton, such as nauseous or caustic liquids which they expel on provocation, and, strange to say, Mr. Crenot has found that certain beetles actually exude their blood, charged with noxious products.

Regulate your liver with a dose of Lincoln Tea and your complexion will brighten with each dose.
